

Dr Monika Jain is an accomplished gastroenterologist who is currently the Director, Department of Sri Balaji Action Medical Institute, New Delhi. The department at Sri Balaji Action Medical Institute and Action Cancer centre is a center for advanced gastroenterology and hepatology catering to a large population of Delhi NCR. It is also one of the highly rated standalone cancer hospitals in the city providing advanced oncology treatment.

She finished her undergraduate studies at Lady Hardinge Medical College and post-graduation from Safdarjung Hospital, New Delhi. She earned her DM in gastroenterology from the prestigious GB Pant hospital. She has been part of several centres and has a career spanning more than 30 years.

Her special interests include therapeutic endoscopy and ERCP for pancreatic and biliary diseases and advanced endoscopic ultrasound procedures. Her publications reflect her interests in these areas

She is an expert in ERCP which involves performing both biliary and pancreatic endotherapy on a day to day basis. She has been part of several training workshops for ERCP and has trained several young gastroenterologists in the procedure

GI oncology as a speciality is her passion and she is strong advocate for comprehensive oncology care. She has been keenly involved in performing advanced EUS procedures to improve the quality of palliative care that is given to patients with advanced cancer.

She is passionate about teaching and training young gastroenterologists. She is currently running a DNB programme for gastroenterology which is a well sought after programme in the country. Her attention to endoscopy training has helped mentor several residents with the necessary endoscopy skills required for a holistic care of patients

During the past years, she has organised several educational programmes, training workshops and several national conferences. Regular training workshops and observer-ships are organised by her to mentor young doctors in the area of endoscopy.